Signing with a hardware wallet

A partially signed transaction travels between wallets until every signer has added what it knows.

The hardware wallet shows the destination and the fee before it signs anything at all.